

INDEX OF AIR FORCE OCCUPATIONAL SAFETY AND HEALTH (AFOSH)
STANDARDS, DEPARTMENT OF LABOR OCCUPATIONAL SAFETY AND HEALTH (OSHA) STANDARDS, AND NATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR OCCUPATIONAL SAFETY AND HEALTH (NIOSH) PUBLICATIONS

NOTICE: This publication is available digitally. Contact your Publishing Distribution Office (PDO) for the monthly CD-ROM or access to the bulletin board system.

★This index identifies Air Force Occupational Safety and Health (AFOSH), Department of Labor Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), and National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) publications. Information is presented on new, current, and superseded standards, pamphlets, manuals, and guides which affect Air Force operations. Send comments and suggested improvements on 91- and 127-series standards on AF Form 847, Recommendation for Change of Publication, through channels, to HQ AFSC/SEG, 9700 G Avenue, SE, Suite 223, Kirtland AFB NM 87117-5670. Use the same form to submit comments on 48- and 161-series standards, through channels, to HQ AFMOA/SGOE, 110 Luke Ave, Suite 400, Washington DC 20332-7050.

3. Explanation of Distribution Symbols:

F	Functional. Customer-user determined requirement. Customer-user and PDOs send requirements and requisitions through publishing distribution channels.
G	Trainer's (Instructor) Guide.
W	Student Workbook.
★	Changed information or new publication issued since last index edition.
#	Standards/IMCs not stocked at the AFPDC. They are to be obtained from the OPR (listed to the right of the title).
%	Only publications with the % indicator are on the electronic medium — Air Force Electronic Publishing Library (AFEPL) disk or bulletin board. Publications without this indicator have been printed and distributed, but are not yet on electronic media.

★Section A--Air Force Occupational Safety and Health Standards (Short Title: AFOSH STD)

★4. Information on new publications or revisions to AFOSH standards is published in Part I, Section A, of the Air Force Publishing Bulletin (AFPB). Using organizations should establish requirements for only those standards that apply to their operations. Refer to AFI 91-302, Air Force Occupational and Environmental Safety, Fire Protection and Health (AFOSH) Standards, for those staff agencies authorized to maintain entire sets. There are two ways that copies of AFOSH standards can be obtained. For those AFOSH standards NOT coded as being electronically published, obtain copies through normal PDO procedures. For those AFOSH standards coded as being electronically published, obtain copies from the AFEPL, through your local Information Management (IM) office.

NOTES:

- ★1. AFI 37-161, Distribution Management, provides the PDO permission to reproduce for a customer a copy of a current departmental publication for which there is no stock in the PDO or the AFPDC.
2. Due to series redesignations, new or revised 127-series AFOSH standards will be 91-series and 161-series standards will be 48-series. Until all standards are revised, this AFIND will reflect AFOSH standards in all four series.

Section B--Training Documents Prescribed by AFOSH Standards or AFOSH-Related Publications

5. The training documents listed below are available through distribution channels from AFPDC. Submit requirements and (or) requisitions to the AFPDC in the short-title format. The short title tells which AFOSH standard prescribes the training document. The short title is deciphered as follows: AFOSH (self-explanatory); TD (training document); 161-21 (number of applicable AFOSH standard); 1W, -2W, etc., (student workbook); -1G, -2G, etc., (trainer/instructor guide).

Section C--Department of Labor Occupational Safety and Health Standards (OSHA)

★6. OSHA publications are issued by the Department of Labor and are provided through the AFPDC supply channels as a central procurement point (see paragraph 7.2. below). These OSHA standards have been approved by HQ AFSC as functionally impacting on AF operations. NOTE: See paragraph 4 for instructions on ordering Air Force Occupational Safety and Health (AFOSH) Standards.

★7. The complete text of the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) Title 29, Parts 1900 through 1990 is available in two ways:

★7.1. World Wide Web (Internet). Access the OSHA Computerized Information System (OCIS) at the Salt Lake City Technical Center, Salt Lake City, Utah by typing: "http://www.osha.gov/" or "http://www.osha-slc.gov/". Users will access OSHA standards on the Internet, if available.

★7.2. Compact Computer Disk with Read-Only Memory (CD-ROM). This CD-ROM is primarily for use by offices with full-time safety, bioenvironmental engineering (BE), or fire protection personnel that do not have Internet access. Air Force organizations that have a need to refer to OSHA Regulations on a frequent basis (and do not have Internet access) may also receive the CD-ROM. Occasional users, or users that need only specific segments of the full text of OSHA Regulations, are asked to access the Internet or use other base copies of OSHA CD-ROM.

★NOTES:

1. The OCR listed is the point of contact for the subject matter only; they do not publish or distribute the CD-ROM.
2. Submit requirements through normal AFPDC supply channels, in the short-title format.
3. This CD-ROM is not authorized for distribution to Air Force contractors (FOUO).

NOTE: The OCR listed is the point of contact for the subject matter only; they do not publish or distribute the charts.

Section D - Pamphlets, Manuals, and Guides Issued by OSHA

9. This section lists OSHA publications issued by the United States Department of Labor (US DOL), which have been approved by HQ AFSC as functionally impacting on Air Force operations. They are made available through the AFPDC supply channels as a central procurement point. Included in this section are instructions how to obtain other OSHA publications, as well as NIOSH publications.

NOTES:

1. The OCR listed is the point of contact for the subject matter only; they do not publish or distribute the publications.

★2. Some OSHA publications may be viewed and downloaded from the OSHA Worldwide Net home page (<http://www.osha.gov/>). In addition, single free copies of specific OSHA publications can be obtained from the OSHA Publications Office, US DOL, 200 Constitution Ave, NW, Room N3101, Washington DC 20210, or from the nearest OSHA Regional Office. Other publications are available through the Superintendent of Documents, US Government Printing Office, Washington DC 20402, (202) 783-3238. Many of the documents are available through the DOL's Labor News Bulletin Board (BBS) at (202-219-4784; callers pay toll call charges. (Data Bits=8; Stop Bit=1; Voice Phone (202) 219-8831; up to 14,400 BAUD).

★3. NIOSH publications can be obtained by telephone at (513) 533-8287, FAX (513) 533-8573; by electronic mail at: "pubstaft@niosdt1.em.cdc.gov", or by regular mail at: NIOSH, 4676 Columbia Parkway, Cincinnati OH 45226. There may be charges for some NIOSH publications. A NIOSH publications catalog is available from Publications Dissemination, DSDTT, NIOSH, 4676 Columbia Parkway, Cincinnati OH 45226-1998.

OSHA 2014	Recordkeeping and Reporting Guidelines for the Federal Employee	AFSC/SEGS	F
OSHA 2014a	Recordkeeping Guidelines for Occupational Injuries and Illnesses	AFSC/SEGS	F
OSHA 3067	Concepts and Techniques of Machine Safeguarding	AFSC/SEGS	F

NOTES:

1. OSHA Publication 2014 summarizes Federal reporting and recordkeeping requirements of OSHA. It addresses provisions of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, Executive Order 12196, Occupational Safety and Health Programs for Federal Employees, and 29 CFR Part 1960, Basic Program Elements for Federal Employee Occupational Safety and Health Programs. Described in this booklet are basic recordkeeping and reporting requirements for all occupational safety and health programs.

2. OSHA Publication 2014a provides guidelines to be used during mishap investigations to determine if injuries to civilian employees are recordable and, thus, reportable. Included is information to help the investigator's reportability determination when the employee received first aid or medical treatment. This document augments information in OSHA Publication 2014.

3. OSHA Publication 3067 is available to those with an interest in protecting workers against the hazards of moving machine parts. It is a manual of basic technical information and workable ideas which the employer may use as a guide to achieving compliance. It will not be used as a criteria document in lieu of AFOSH standards or other US Air Force directives. Users may submit requisitions to the AFPDC for issue of not more than five copies to safety and health protection and fire prevention offices.
